IS YOURS AN UP-TO-DATE PEN LINE?

IS your pen department in step with the times or are you still cluttering up your case with numbers as obsolete as cars with out four wheel brakes? The Parker Duofold will bring you right up to the minute. It offers not only every feature to be found in any pen manufactured but in addition a number that are exclusively Parker. This is a broad statement but one that is supported by facts. Let us review them and you will perceive that no other pen manufacturer can truthfully offer you the improvements in a writing instrument that Parker can, and in view of them it is not surprising that Parker has a consumer preference that is 24.07% greater than that of the pen nearest in popularity—a fact established in a nation-wide pen poll conducted by the Library Bureau of Chicago whose statistics can be verified by anyone who wishes to do so.

Here is the impressive list of Duofold features:—

- (a) 24% greater ink capacity than the average pen.
- (b) Leak proof.
- (c) Push button filling device instead of lever—no hole in the wall.
- (d) "Spear head" feed instead of comb feed—prevents "sweating".
- (e) Slip section, permits change of points.
- (f) Washer clip—adjustable.
- (g) Flexible, medium and stiff points ranging from needle to oblique.
- (h) The convertible feature whereby a pocket pen can instantly be converted to a desk set pen and vice versa.
- (i) Greater range of color.

Instant Flow
Droplet of ink always ready to start at touch to paper. Fine ink channel ground between points combines capillary attraction with gravity feed.

Pressureless Touch
The light weight of the pen itself is sufficient to start and keep it writing.

28% Lighter Than Rubber
Parker Permaute Material makes a pen that your hand never tires of holding, due to weight.

One manufacturer has based an entire advertising campaign on the idea of balance arrived at through an extreme external design. What, pray, enables the Parker Duofold to write with its incomparable "Pressureless touch?" A droplet of ink is always ready to start instantly after touching the Duofold ink to paper. A fine ink channel, ground between the points, combines capillary attraction with gravity feed so that the light weight of the pen itself is sufficient to start and keep it writing. No hand that guides a Duofold ever experiences fatigue.

Ink Capacity is about as essential to satisfactory performance in a pen as miles per gallon is to a motor car, isn't it? The Miner Laboratories, 9 South Clinton street, Chicago, tested each of six leading makes of fountain pens for ink capacity and the following comparison speaks for itself—

Parker	2.534 grams
Pen No. 2	1.568 grams
Pen No. 3	2.336 grams
Pen No. 4	1.883 grams
Pen No. 5	2.175 grams
Pen No. 6	2.257 grams
Average of 5 other makes	2.044 grams
Greater capacity of Parker compared with average of other makes	24%

The Parker Duofold is leak proof on two counts. (1) Before the inner cap is screwed in to the outer cap, it is machined with such accuracy that it forms an ink tight seal where it joins the section which is also machined. Inasmuch as no other pen has this inner cap—a separate piece which permits the use of a washer clip (which can be taken off and adjusted tightly to the barrel)—no other pen offers an absolutely ink tight seal. Then, (2) since there is no hole in the Parker barrel for a lever there is no possibility of ink flooding out in case the sac breaks.

In its spear head feed the Duofold possesses another unique bit of construction. On either side of the feed three notches are cut giving it that spear head appearance from which it derives its name. These hold backs or ink retainers are of the utmost importance to the proper functioning of the pen because they really do insure absolute ink control. They take care of any surplus ink forced to the point due to expansion of air in the barrel—a result of variations in temperature between the pen and the hand.

The slip section permits instant change of points when the assortment carried is not large. This feature also—interchangability of points—forms the basis for one manufacturer's entire advertising campaign. It is only one of Parker's many features.

As for color what line can vie with the flashing yellow, red, green and blue with the contrasting black tips of the Parker line? The incomparable pearl and black de luxe Duofold which contains far more pearl than any similar model—and looks it!—the many soft pastel shades—a color to suit any taste.

It is important that you always carry a varied assortment of points to satisfy the different kinds of writers. So many people are continually trying to make a point do what it was never intended to do. No two people write alike, no two points are alike. Any one style point can be made to write several different ways. For example, take a needle point in the hand of a light penman, it will make a hair-like line. Hand it to a penman with a heavy hand and

Non-Breakable

We have thrown Parker Duofolds from an airplane 3,000 feet aloft and not one has ever broken.

SLANTED NOTCHES

TWO PENS IN ONE

Below is illustrated one of the greatest exclusive features of the Parker Duofold. Take off the cap and tip from the Parker in your pocket and put on a Parker taper. Your pocket pen thus becomes a desk pen in an instant. Reverse the process and take it home with you when you leave the office.

Leak-Proof

Empty Parker. Put cap on tightly. Immerse in water. Press filler button. Not a bubble will appear, proving it leak-proof.

he immediately changes it into a heavier line, thereby changing it into an ordinary fine point, etc. A medium point in the hand of a heavy writer will be changed into a coarse line, as if written with a coarse point. And so on, from the extra fine point to the broad stub, there are variations, all depending upon the writer. Parker not only offers you seven points ranging from needle to stub and oblique but they are made flexible, medium or stiff as well.

Then, Parker's new Desk and pocket pen in one feature is one which no other pen manufacturer can duplicate. Every customer who buys a Parker desk set with taper pen now receives a complete outer cap with gold filled clip or ring without extra charge so he can convert his desk set pen to a pocket model and take it home with him when he leaves the office. This two-pens-in-one, without extra charge, gives the Parker dealer a 100% selling advantage over dealers handling other desk sets—an advantage that will sweep the market for you if you tie in consistently. Remember this last and most valuable exclusively Parker feature—Parker Duofold is the only pen whose construction permits this. Simply unscrew the desk pen taper on leaving the office, screw on the filler cap and the outer cap with clip and take the converted pen home in your pocket! The idea will win nine out of ten Desk Set customers the moment they know about it.

37 years ago Geo. S. Parker decided to make the world's finest fountain pen. That pen is known today as the Parker Duofold. Its development is marked by 29 patents, 47 improvements and a guarantee forever against all defects*. It is inconceivable that you could get a better pen at any price.

"In Pressureless Touch," says Mr. Parker, "I think we have lightened the labor of long-hand writing in a truly able manner—in fact, have taken practically all the effort from it, a steady, even ink-flow being maintained easily by the feather-light weight of the pen itself. Finger-pressure is relieved. No effort. No strain.

So popular is the Duofold that it is not only leading seller among good pens in the United States, but is required by pen dealers in 90 foreign lands.

Barrels are Non-Breakable, 28% lighter than rubber. Points yield to any hand, yet never lose their shape. Your choice is made from five, flashing, modern colors, obtainable only in the Duofold. Duofold Pencils in all colors to match Duofold Pens.

Be sure to see, "Geo. S. Parker—DUOFOLD," on the barrel of the pen or pencil, thus making certain of the betterments that Geo. S. Parker has included in these famous writing aids.

The 1929 Parker Sales Conference

During the first six months of 1929, the greatest sales record in the history of The Parker Pen Company has been established. This was reflected in the largest and most enthusiastic gathering of men who ever attended a sales conference in the home plant at Janesville. The conference, which was held on July 1, 2 and 3, was conducted by Mr. W. L. Clark, General Sales Manager.

Two Parker men flew to the meeting from New York City in the big Parker Duofold—the monoplane which has carried 6000 Parker dealers on flights in a nation-wide publicity tour. A disinterested observer present was heard to remark that of all the gatherings of a similar nature which he had ever attended, never had he observed such spirit, spontaneity and devotion to a cause.

On the evening of the first day, the men were guests of Mr. George S. Parker at his beautiful country home Stonehenge, situated high on a bluff overlooking Rock River. The culminating event of the occasion was a banquet at which one hundred men were in attendance. These men will carry a message to you dealers this fall which, we predict, you will be interested in hearing.

Parker Enjoys 100% Consumer Preference in This Pacific Island

A CORAL-RIBBED shore—waving palms—bathed in the violet glow of a South Seas twilight sun. A group of natives—burnt bronze skins reflecting its dying rays. Thousands of miles from civilization—a tiny speck of an island.

There—among the chattering crowd—an old man. His long white beard swept by the breeze. They gather closer around him. King of them all. A lone, white-skinned crusader at the end of the earth.

More than forty years Father Emanuel Rougier has thus served "his" people on Christmas Island, lonely little land in the Pacific.

Recently the aged Priest visited San Francisco. While there he was attracted by an interesting Parker display in the window of O'Connell and Davis, 237 California street, and decided to make Christmas Island 100% Parker. Accordingly he purchased ten Parker Duofolds to take back with him.

Christmas Island! What a name—and strangely enough—should you see Father Rougier as he is today—he would take you back to Santa Claus days. That flowing beard—those kindly, crinkly eyes. Kris Kringle in the flesh. Aye, scoff not—he is a Santa Claus to those twittering natives.

Father Rougier is the sole owner of the island—king, council—adviser, priest—everything. Fiction would record a struggle with the elements—make-shift homes in thatch—primitive tools and lives. But fiction is not life—Father Rougier is a millionaire.

He owns a yacht—like other millionaires—but a yacht that only bards would picture—riding the wind-whipped waves o'er mile-deep seas. Jack London, chronicler of adventure, once called it his own.

It is named the "Marechal Foch," after that doughty World War leader.

Father Rougier's schooner, plowing through mountainous seas on March 11, almost sank—lifeboats were swept away—decks washed by the waves. 'Twas as though the Sea Gods would take her with them to the depths. Marshal Foch, battling the seas of old age and illness, died in Paris that same day.

The crew of this sturdy boat is made up of native

Tahitans, all of them devoted followers of Father Rougier. They belong to his little kingdom on the isolated isle.

Father Rougier took back with him many necessities besides his Parkers—things that even a South Sea isle can't produce. "Fair exchange is no robbery"—the Marechal Foch brings huge shipments of copra and mother of pearl shell to this country.

Interior of H. G. Butterfield's new ultra modern Jewelry Store, Frisco Building, Sixth and Main Sts., Joplin, Mo. This splendid store has a personality all its own.

R. FRANZ, Division Manager

THIS unit of the Parker Sales organization carries the Doufold Banner into eleven states, including the Nation's Capitol. These are, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Delaware, Maryland, and District of Columbia.

Coal strikes, Textile strikes, Floods, Speed Laws and even the Flu, do not hinder these "Knights of the Grip" from vanquishing the common foe—Sales Quota.

DIVISION MANAGER FRANZ—Like King Arthur of old, he presides over the Round Table where the Knights foregather to plan their combats and tell of their deeds.

Unlike a King, however, he cuts the ceremony and deals in plain subjects of sales, quotas, returned goods, price cutters, belated commissions and expense allowances. His chief hobby is watching the daily market quotations on Parker stock and he is one of the few people who have not publicly endorsed Lucky Strike cigarettes or participated in the Old Gold blind-fold test. The real reason is he prefers Camels and this is no jest.

SAM LAYTON—This Knight was christened Sherman, but the boys call him Sam. They probably believe the latter a better name for a salesman.

He covers the hard boiled section of New York City where oftimes the trade phones the New York Branch for a salesman, and upon calling, ask him to deliver two pens and a package of pencil erasers by special messenger.

Despite this, however, Sam has a host of excellent accounts, of which anyone might be proud. Like a real knight, he has a castle. His new home on Long Island is fitted with every kind of doodad that is nationally advertised, from cut glass door knobs to a twenty-first century oil burner. Sam sure does believe in keeping ahead of the times.

JACK ROBINSON—In the story books, you never read of small Knights. Jack, however, was not built along the usual lines. He is a short fellow. But short fellows can get out of tight places more gracefully.

Besides the mid-town section of New York City, he covers Bronx County, and being a small fellow with a big territory, he drives a snappy Chrysler which simply has to step when Jack says so.

He has a speaking acquaintance with many of the traffic cops in town, and to the envy of many a knight, he has received numerous invitations to appear at Court.

Jack recently joined the Elks. Someone told him that many jokes belong to it.

HAROLD GORRINGE—With a suit of armor, a spear and a shield, this big fellow would make Sir Lancelot of King Arthur's staff look like a piker.

Sam Layton thinks Gorringe resembles Abraham Lincoln without the whiskers. He is that big and rugged. We call him Gorringe for, somehow, the name Harold does not seem to fit so much height.

He covers half of New Jersey but not in one stride. A Willys Knight Big Six helps him across.

Aside from selling Duofolds, Gorringe would rather fish and play poker. King Arthur's Table, being round, must have been the place where poker started, hence every good knight likes poker.

BEN WACHTEL—Parker salesmen evidently are not measured by any standard of stature. They come long and short. Ben is as short as Sam and Gorringe are long.

Although a small fellow, he presides over the Duofold destinies of the big Quaker town—Philadelphia.

Ben is a bachelor. Obviously he believes in concentration. That is, doing one thing well. He is so busy getting Parker distribution that he cannot find time to court a girl.

Like most bachelors, he gets around a lot and enjoys a wide social acquaintance with his trade. Many of the offspring of his buyers call him Uncle Ben.

Our excellent distribution among baseball celebrities is undoubtedly due to Ben's activity. He knows more baseball stars intimately than Judge Landis.

Any summer week-end you will find him at the Delaware Water Gap. That is heaven to Ben.

A. D. W. SMITH—This Knight of the Round Table is known as "Dewey" among his trade. Although he was christened after the noted Admiral, he does not look like a sailor.

He has a hankering for the Sea, however, for the southern half of New Jersey is part of his domain and that includes Atlantic City, Asbury Park and other Ritzzy Sea shore resorts. You're bound to find him there in between trips around the circuit with

one eye looking for new accounts and the other eye, gazing at the nymphs. Being a bachelor, however, that is his privilege. Dewey covers Delaware also and several counties in Pennsylvania. He has plenty of territory and work to keep him out of mischief.

BILL GROVER—Here is a Knight that should have been a Kings' jester. The King business is flat, however, hence he sells the Parker line. Bill has a mighty keen sense of humor and wit. As a matter of fact he was a vaudeville actor some years ago, but after acquiring a family, with more mouths to feed, he had to quit the show business for something more profitable.

Throughout Brooklyn and Long Island where he plies his trade, he lands more new accounts with wise-cracks than with the sales portfolio, and that is going some.

If you complain that it is raining, Bill optimistically declares it is good business for taxi-cabs and rubber shoe manufacturers.

His favorite joke is about the Scotchman who had—well let's save this story for some other time. The censor would kill it anyway.

HARRY GOETCHIUS—These Knights come in various sizes. They also differ in ages. We would not dare call any of them old, but Harry is the youngest.

With a new snappy Oakland of which he is justly proud, the hills of Westchester, Putnam and several other counties in New York City, mean nothing.

Harry's plan is to subdue the dealers' sales resistance with his portfolio and captivate the daughters with the car. Well, youth must be served.

If he continues as well as he has done, he will receive lots of commissions so as to perpetuate the program.

CLARENCE TRAVER—"Doc" is his nickname. We are not sure whether he studies medicine, but as a doctor he can effectively administer a dose of sales statistics to any "die-hard" in Boston or elsewhere in the several Massachusetts counties he travels.

Doc originally came from the factory at Janesville, but is now a thorough New Englander and Bostonian, but has not yet acquired the accent.

When business is dull through the textile sections he turns back to Boston and whoops things up among the trade, and then buys more Parker stock with his commissions.

Amherst is his "alma mater" and President Coolidge studies there. It must be a good College. Doc has the edge on the President, however, for as we go to press, Doc has a good job, but Coolidge lost his.

J. A. G. PIKE—Down in mid Pennsylvania where they must mine coal so as to eat and buy Parkers, dwells this Knight who travels up hill and down dale as much as any of the old timers did centuries ago.

He covers a mighty large territory but thinks it is small because some years ago he traveled throughout Canada for our Canadian office.

Pike has never mentioned it but surely there must have been some regrets in leaving a nice place like Canada when so many people from the States like to make pilgrimages there.

Be that as it may, he is doing well, and perhaps some day he will buy a coal mine and then too can make a few pilgrimages over the boundary.

BERGES

WALDMAN

FRED VOIGHT—Maryland and the Nation's Capitol. No Knight of old had a more historical domain. This ambassador of commerce spends a good part of his time at the place where lots of laws are made—good and bad. It is a matter of opinion.

We value the many excellent accounts in this territory and in Fred we confidently entrust Parker representation equal to any congressional standarts.

C. K. HORTON—A fiery steed, but which feeds on gasoline and wears rubber shoes is the mount of our gallant crusader, who climbs the mountains and valleys through Vermont, New Hampshire and into Maine.

Good weather or bad, floods or overflowing streams do not keep "C.K." from doing his allotted share. There are oftimes long jumps and few stops, but the summer beauty of the Green Mountains of Vermont and the White Range in New Hampshire offers its compensations.

GEORGE WALDMAN—One Round Table of Knights would not be complete without the Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court, of which Mark Twain wrote.

George typifies this jovial fellow and as he roams through Connecticut as well as Rhode Island, he spreads good will for Parkers and good cheer to the Gentry.

Pleasingly plump, and smiling with a golden tenor voice, George can sing a ballad that would charm a princess. In fact he did this not so long ago for he sang his way into the heart of a Connecticut maid, was married in Connecticut, and lives in Connecticut. This is the real "patronize your Home town" spirit.

W. E. BERGES—Berges is a new man in our midst but we bid him welcome and know that before long he will have won his spurs and bring Tales of prowess to the Table Round.

HORTON

PIKE

And in conclusion, may we say as they do in the story books—they lived happily ever afterward. Twice a year these "Knights of the Grip" gather in conference in New York City and after the usual order of business is closed, rest about the Round Table and enjoy the social contact that befits all good fellowship.

PARKER PENS PROFITABLE

All Year Round, Says Gasson.

J. E. Gasson has a very up-to-date drug store at 10-12 N. Main street in Kenton which is a progressive town of 12,000 in Central Ohio. He writes us:

"Over twenty years ago when Fountain Pens were a novelty and you had to sell a dozen before your sales amounted to anything worth while, I commenced selling Parker Lucky Curve Fountain Pens. From that time on I have kept specializing on "Parker," adding larger show cases as our trade increased. In fact I have had practically all styles and sizes until now I have a two gross case. This case has been a revelation to me on how display sells goods. It has been the talk of the community since being installed.

When Parker Duofold Pens and Pencils were introduced, it meant making the Pen business a profitable one each month of the year especially since Parker advertising and displays have been constantly before the people.

I have always featured service to my customers which has been made easy by the Parker Service Stations, easily reached from this city. In addition to this I have taken care of minor repairs in the store and have made many valuable customers and friends for the Parker Pen."

Ivy Ledbetter Lee

IVY Lee, publicity man extraordinary, is dean of a profession which has ten thousand members in the United States. Today at the age of fifty-two, with dark hair, keen blue eyes and robust, well knit frame, he sits at a desk in the front office of a suite which occupies the entire thirty-fourth floor of the Equitable Trust Company Building, 15 Broad street, New York City, an etching of which by Anton Schutz appears above. Among his clients are John D. Rockefeller, Sr. and Jr., Charles M. Schwab and other notables. He is publicity adviser for several internationally known banking houses and numerous corporations engaged in the nation's basic industries—coal, oil, iron, steel and copper. Such a man has an appreciation of the finer things of life and it is natural that a Parker should minister to his efficiency.

Business turns to Parker Fountain Pen Desk Sets to put lost motion at work

People who sit inside offices are rapidly discovering that Parker Desk Sets not only increase their daily output, but give the whole place a real air of distinction and alertness. This contrasts strongly with the slow-going aspect of offices that still try to exist on a diet of old-fashioned, ink-spattered ink-wells and corroded steel pens.

If your office or home has that obsolete look, call or phone any Parker dealer to see how little it costs to make a general housecleaning of out-of-date writing equipment and to inaugurate Parker Desk Sets in its stead.

Parker Duofold Desk Fountain Pens carry their own ink—24% more than average, size for size—and write with Pressureless Touch.

Removable Taper changes the Parker Duofold from a Desk Pen to a Pocket Pen or vice versa on leaving or arriving at the office. No other does this. Get a convertible Parker and save the price of an extra pen.

Bases of Onyx, Glass, Marble or Porcelain, with Ball and Socket Sleeve, hold the pen ever ready within sight and reach; and ornament the finest desk.

$6.50 to $100, including Pen. Money back if you're willing to return to pen dipping days after two-weeks' trial of Parker Non-stop Writing. Call or phone your dealer.

A Word to Salespeople

THE consumer may be king but the man behind the counter is the power behind the throne. He it is who, in large measure, influences, for better or for worse, the decisions of citizen King. Now a retail sales person may be bright, cheerful and agreeable; in a word he may possess many of the requirements for successful selling, but if he doesn't know his merchandise he is at a considerable disadvantage.

The average consumer is a fairly careful buyer, isn't he? He wants to know pretty much what each item he purchases will do for him. While it's hardly within the bounds of reason to expect sales people to be fully conversant with each feature of the hundreds of items carried, there are certain cases, the Parker Duofold for example, where the unit of sale is high enough in price to justify a little intensive study of its advantages.

Have you ever stopped to consider that there is as much profit in the sale of one seven dollar Parker Duofold as there is in the sale of 110 packages of any popular brand of cigarette? A Duofold sale requires one trip to that case in the front of the store—cigarettes require 110 for the same profit. Or, if you are in the drug store, it requires 42 trips to the counter to sell 42 packets of Mr. Bayer's famous aspirin, but they pay no more than one trip from the prescription case to the front of the store to sell a Duofold, and so on.

Frequently in these pages we devote space to pointing out and explaining the construction of the Duofold, wherein it differs from other pens and just what its points of superiority are. If any sales person who reads this would like to have Parkergrams mailed him personally, each month, we would be glad to take care of it for you. Please write to us.

Believe it or not, Mr. Ripley

A PARKER Duofold pen has been discovered as one would an oyster.

Mr. John E. Gruzdeff, an employee of the Northwestern Pacific Railway at their terminal, Tiburon, California on San Francisco bay, tells our San Francisco office of the following experience.

Recently while working on the bottom of a launch, moored in shallow water, he felt something hard and smooth in the mud under his feet.

Reaching down he was surprised to find a Parker Duofold pen showing evidence of having been in the mud and salt water for a considerable time. Thinking that it had become very much deteriorated by corrosion he was greatly surprised to find that after drying and filling it the pen worked perfectly.

Parker pens do resist what steel will not.

The small boys of Tiburon are now digging in the sand for Parker Duofold pens.

Here's Orville Brown's six thousand dollar Packard, which, he says Parker Pens materially assisted him in buying. Oh, there's money in fountain pens—if you stock a real assortment and tie in with Parkers' national advertising. Mr. Brown, whose fountain pen shop is in the Spitzer Arcade, Toledo, Ohio, says further that the wisdom of putting so much pearl in the Parker Duofold De Luxe is proved by his sales. Out of ten sales in black and white numbers, seven were Parkers, picked by the customer without a sales demonstration!

 "On the opening of our new store, we found that one of the stimulants to our business was the Parker

Duofold Fountain Pen. This pen makes a great showing as to appearance and greatly increases our sales. Your advertising is certainly putting it over.

Lamb Bros., 6th and Chestnut streets, Philadelphia, are located opposite the old Congress Hall at Independence Square where thousands of visitors come every week from every part of the U. S.

Mr. Ben Leon and Mr. Lawrence have charge of the Pen department and that they run it efficiently is testified by the fact that they sold $4,500 00 worth of Parker products last year.

Parker
Duofold

THE hieroglyphics atop which the helmeted gentlemen on the right appear are readily understood in India. There too they know the meaning of "pressureless touch" as well as they do in Maine or California. The window at the left contains a Parker Display by Villasmil & Cia of Maracaibo, Venezuela in South America. The Parker Pen Company and its subsidiaries, with factories in the United States, Canada, England and Germany and distributors in ninety countries in all parts of the world are by far the largest exporters of fountain pens in America. Consumer preference for Parker products is thus not only national—it is international. Wherever American movies have penetrated—and farther—Here you find the Parker Duofold also.

Parker in Denmark

THE firm of August Bangs Boghandel, Vesterboogade 60, Copenhagen, Denmark recently installed a Parker gross case. The proprietors, Messrs. Ejvind Christensen and Philipson are most enthusiastic over the results. After dressing their window as shown above they sold more Parker pens in one week than they had formerly sold of another make in a month.

At home and abroad—Parkers sell fastest.

How Parker Helps Make History

The above scene reveals the president of the Republic of Ecuador, Senor Isidro Ayora, in the act of signing the new constitution of that country which was recently completed by its National Assembly. The pen used by the President of this progressive Republic was a Parker Duofold.

An unusually attractive Parker display by The Owl Drug Co., 3rd and Pike, Seattle.

The Chase Pen Shop, St Paul

Mr. E. Z. Chase, manager of the Chase Pen Shop, 156 Bremer Arcade, St. Paul, Minnesota writes:
 "You will no doubt be interested in knowing that our profits from the 18 doz. assortment and complete line of Parker Desk Sets which we carry at all times, has during 1928 and 1929 to date, been highly satisfactory, due to turning our stock several times each year. All the Parker line are live numbers.

The gentleman in the inset is Mr. W. E. Lowe in charge of the Fountain Pen Dept. of the Swabacher Frey Stationery Co., Los Angeles. Mr. Lowe knows fountain pens from A to Z and that is why they have so many Parker windows.

$5 and $7 in color; $7.50, $8.50 and $10 in Moderne
Black and Pearl. Pencils to match, $3 to $5.

In School—in Business . . .

*Guaranteed Forever Against All Defects

Parker Pressureless Touch—presented in Duofold Pens—asks no one to strain his muscles and exert his mind to do its job of writing. The ink connects with your paper a split-second sooner than the point, and its flow keeps pace with the speed of your hand by contact alone—not by pressure!

Now, Parker's method rules throughout America. A census of pens in 13 technical schools disclosed that Parker leads in popularity 2 to 1. And a nation-wide poll conducted by the Library Bureau proved Parker the preference by 25%.

Non-Breakable Barrels of lustrous, jewel-like Permanite, smartly black-tipped—shapely, quick and light as a dart—28% lighter than rubber, holding 24% more ink than average, size for size. Your judgment will never be challenged if you carry this fountain pen classic. Step up to any good pen counter and select your point.
